by the trustees by which a season of rest may be secured to the president without severing his official connection. President Catell's resignation was laid before the trustees this afternoon and was only acted on. In it he refers to his letter of last full in which he said he folt that he must cease the work, as it was proving too severe for him and was undermining his beauth. He assured the board that only this could cause him to resign from the head of the matrution to which he had given the best years of his life. The board received the resignation and appointed a committee to wait on President Cattell, and offer him an indefinite leave of absence with the hope that in this way his resignation may be recalled and his health once more be restored. Dr. Cattell said to the committee that his resignation must be final, that he felt he could not go on in the work. The committee will report to the board this evening.

EXERCISES AT YALE. MEETING OF THE ALUMNI-SENATOR BAYARD AD-DRESSES THE GRADUATES IN LAW.

Dana, '38, of Wilkesbarre, Penn.; Wayne McVeagh, '53, of Pennsylvania; Judge Stanley Woodruff, '55, of Wilkesbarre, Penn.; President Perry, '63, of Doane College, Nebraska, and

The following were appointed as the Alumni Committee for the ensuing year: President Porter, Professors Salisbury, Thacher, Day, Fisher, Dwight, Brush, Newton, Wheeler, Northrop, Sumner, Packard, Dexter, Wier, Baidwin, Woolsey, E. S. Dana, Lounsbury, and Messrs, C. H. Farnham, Morris F. Tyler, Henry B. Sargent, the Rev. Dr. Tood, the stev. E. S. Lines, Thomas Hooker and William L. Cushing.

THE NEEDS OF THE COLLEGE, The annual statement in behalf of the college was cir-culated at the alumni meeting this morning. It contains the following items of interest respecting the col-tains the following items of interest respecting the college:

The number of students in the college this year has exceeded that of last year by upward of fifty. It is a common impression that we are already largely endowed. But if by our pecuniary enchowed. But if by our pecuniary enchowed. But if by our pecuniary enchowed is a meant productive invested property, the income of which may be used for the payernent of salaries, repairs, the care of buildings and grounds, fuel and light for the public rooms, the fibrary of caspel, or any other strictly college expense, the endowments are meagre. This is evident from the financial reports of the corporation, which are annually prosented by the treasurer and are freely sent to the graduates of the college. The last of these reports shows that the funds called academical amount in the aggregate the funds called academical amount in the aggregate to the college uses, amount to only $340.816. The explanation of this is that there are included in the "academical funds" several large amounts which either never can, or for an uncertain series of years cannot, be used for the proper support of the department.

Thus (a), the sum of $227.897 consists of gifts held in trust by the corporation, for the benefit of students, the income of which is pull in schelarships, fellowships and prizes. (b) No less than $100,000 of the F. D. and T. W. Porter fund must be considered as set apart to produce the annulty of $5,000 to which that fund is subject. (c) In the academical funds is included an item of $114.507 invested in unproductive real estate. (d) And finally the recent excess of expenses above income has consumed $12,486 of the funds themselves.

These four items, $227.897, $100,000, $114.567 and $12,486, and we find the "academical funds," If we would learn what pecuniary capital the department has to rely on for income and present support, and we find the remainder to be $340,516. The obtiunty record for the last year shows that of the partment has to rely on for income and pr graduates of the Academical Department, sixty-three have died; Medical Department, nine; Law Department,

One; Scientific School, five.

The oldest living graduates are; Class of 1813, the Rev. David L. Hunn, of Buffalo, N. Y., born on November 5, 1789; class of 1814, the Rev. Leonard Withington, of Nowburyport, Mass., born on August 9, 1789; class of 1814, George Hooker, M. D., of Longmeadow, Mass., born on March 17, 1793.

EXERCISES OF THE CLASS OF '53. At the conclusion of the Alumni meeting the graduates adjourned to Battell Chapel to listen to the thirtieth anniversary exercises of the class of 1853. The class marched into the chapel forty-five strong. The meeting was presided over by the venerable ex-President Woolsey, who spoke briefly. Charlton T. Lewis, of New-York, was then introduced as the class poet and delivered a poem which was frequently interrupted by ap-plause. The orator was President Andrew D. White, of plause. The erator was President Andrew D. White, of Cornell University, who delivered an interesting oration entitled "The Message of the Nineteenth Century to the Twentieth."

entitled "The Message of the Nineteenth Century to the Twentieth."

To-night the class had a supper at Hill's Homestead, Savin Rock. Sherman W. Knevals, President Arthur's law partner, presided. Among the graduates of 53 present to-day are the following: E. C. Stedman, William P. Alken, Henry H. Babenek, Theodore Bacon, Isaac H. Bromley, George H. Watrons, Andrew D. White, Joel S. Smith, Henry C. Robiuson, Wayne Mac-Yeagh, Horace H. Kent, of California; General Edward Barland of Norwich; the Rev. Dr. James M. Whiton, of Newark, N. J.; and Charlton T. Lewis, of New-York.

THE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The fifty-ninth anniversary exercises of the Law Department of the College were held at the Centre Church this afternoon. Among those on the platform were Ex-Governor Charles R. Ingersoll, Governor Thomas M. Waller, Mayor Henry Lewis, Professor Francis Wayland Waller, Mayor Henry Lewis, Professor Francis Wayland President Noah Porter and Postmaster N. D. Sperry. After prayer by President Porter, the audience listened to the Townsend prize orations by two members of the graduating class of the Law Sencol. The speakers and the subjects of their orations were as follows: "The Responsibilities of Directors of Private Corporations," by Henry C White, B. A., of New-Haven; "The Use of Money in Elections," by Daniel W. Lawier, B. A., of Prairie du Chien, Wis, The prize was awarded to Mr. Lawier, A third oration was to have been delivered, but the speaker, William B. Hill, B. A., of New-Haven, was not present on account of siekness.

SENATOR BAYARDS ORATION. At the conclusion of the prize speaking President Porter introduced the orator of the day, Senator Bayard, of Delaware. Senator Bayard's subject was, "The Responsibilities of the Legal Profession in a Republic."
After referring to the passage of the act of 1862, making notes of the Government of the United States legal tender, as an unwise and mischievous expedient, an unwarranted exercise of power impatiently adopted in a season of dauger as an apparent benefit, under the plea "to do a great right, do a little wrong," Senator Bay-

"to do a great right, do a little wrong, Schator Bayard said:

The deplorable consequences of departure from the principles of well regulated liberty may be seen to-day under other forms of government than ours, in the distressing exhibition of the prostrating force of sudden exigencies and dangers, embarrassing and alarming a British administration which cannot be held freesponsible for the outbreaks and calamities they are called upon to confront. Upon our shores are being landed from Ireland hundreds of families, men, women, and children, under a governmental system of deportation, not paupers or criminais, but tarned out of doors because they are miserable, unhappy and discontented with a government that made and kept them so; but it is a submissive and not a voluntary emicration; and arguments we once heard from British authority, denying the right of self-expairiation, would read somewhat oddly in the light of today. If half the energy had been bestowed at the proper time to reform unwise and unjust laws, and redress actual and now admitted grievances, that is now exhibited in stifling discontents and punishing crimes, perhaps the task of B. Itish rulers in Ireland would be less difficult, and they would have been spared the recourse to in, struments and methods that combine discredit with success and leave stains behind.

Benator Bayard's oration, although exceedingly long,
was listened to closely by the large a addence present.

THE CONFERRING OF DEGREES. President Porter then conferred the degrees up graduates of the Law School. The degrees of M. L. were conferred upon Thomas David Ross, LL. ROBERT COLLYER AT DICKINSON COLLEGE. CARLISLE, Penn., June 26.—The oration before the Literary Societies of Dickinson College this evening, by the Rev. Robert Collyer, was styled "Ideals." Mr. Collyer thus referred to his present and former re-

intions with Methodism:

I am not a nurshing of your fine old college, but Meth I am not a nursling of your fine old college, but Methodism was my mother as she is yours, and nursed me well. I am always glad, therefore, when the way opens for me to nestle down for ever so short a time in her great sumy home and to wander through her pleasant gardens. It is a long time since we particulate time to me has not brought forgettink. We are still mother and son, and I count it all for blessing that my life lies in two homes, or three indeed, rather than in one, while I take this invitation for a token very sweet to me and goed that the mother has not quite forgotten her boy.

The theme—"Ideals"—was then discussed in characteristic style, of which the following is typical:

teristic style, of which the following is typical:

It is of the life which lies before you that I propose to speak to-night, because I know of no other theme which will lift the time so well. And first of all I know of no one thing of a deeper moment than this, as we stand on the hither side and look forward to whatever work we may have to do, that there shall be a real hunger in our hearts to make our life of some real worth both to God and man; to be worth our salt, as they say; to stand for a unit, pease God, and not for a mere vingar fraction; to rise by honest striving from what we may sall a collective medicerity into some sort of distinct nonlinty, and to be of Lyndsay's mind in the Scotch reformation, who, when his comrade cried, "God help us!" answered electify: "So I say, Donald, but if this work we have in hand is to be well done, we must help God, too."

Mr. Wilbur Fisk Spottswood, of Philadelphia, then read a poem pertinent to the occasion, full of local hits

OUT-DOOR SPORTS. RACING AT CONEY ISLAND.

CHANTICLEER, BREEZE, HARRIET, FREE GOLD, DAN K. AND BELLE OF THE NORTH THE WINNERS.

Though the weather was unfavorable the attendance at the Sheepshead Bay races yesterday was large. It must be a bad day indeed that will prevent a considerable number from assembling to see fine racing anywhere near New-York this year. In no previous senson has the interest been so steadily maintained. Except for unfair starts the sport was enjoyable. Three favorites failed and three Chanticleer, lowest in the beiting, won the first race. Pierre Lorillard's fleet filly lireeze does not belie ber name. Handled with even moderate judgment she will earry off many purses. She had belind her a fine field at the end of the second race. The third race supplied the surprise of the day. The winner, Harriet, was so far the last in the betting that French pool tickets paid $103.35 for $5, although there were only seven starters. And yet Harriet won easily en She has not had this name long, having been known as Juliet up to within a fortuight, and this confused many. The changing of the names of racehorses ought to be kept within proper bounds. As it is done now it often results in misleading the public. In this race the favorite Caramel was almost left at the post.

in the fourth race there was an exciting finish between Free Gold and Irish King, most of the spectators think ing it a dead heat. The judges, however, decided for the avorite, Free Gold. Old Dan K. ran away with the seling race, as did Belle of the North with the steeplechase First Race-Purse $500, two-year-olds, selling allow nces; & mile. Four starters-Kelly's unnamed filly, b King Alfonso-Lerna (87. J. Donohue); Lakeland's flily Australina, by Alarm-Australind (95, Williams R. W. Walden's colt Chauticleer, by Viator-Chickabiddy (90, McManua); and Prospect Stable's filly Boulotte by sixta, Macboth seventh, Colonel Sprague eighth-pools $22.95. Greenland burst a blood-vessel la it was wrong to run him again so soon.

A CHANGE IN NAME THAT MADE A BIG DIFFERENCE Third Race-Three-year-olds, handlenp sweep stakes, $20 each, $600 added, $100 to second; 14 miles. Seven starters-Babcock's filly Lizzie Mac (104 pounds, Day); P. Lerillard's cott Nimrod (100, Oliney); F. Robinson's filly Harriet (95, Garrison); J. E. Kelly's filly Bella, (100, Brennan); P. H. Ryan's filty Caramel (104, Hollo way); M. S. Harger's gelding Euclid (97, Riley) and Blohm's filly Lena (92, Walker). Pools—Carame way; M. S. Barger's gesting Lucha (97, Riley); and Biohm's filly Lens (92, Walker). Pools—Caramel $100, Lizzle Mae $65, Bella $60, floid $35. Books—Caramel 3 to 1, Bella, Lizzle Mae and Nimrod 5 to 1 cach, Euclid 6 to 1, Lens 8 to 1, Harriet 10 to 1. There were many breakaways followed by a miscrable start, Nimrod being first away, Lens asceond and Harriet hird, the favorite Caramel being almost left at the post. Harriet snot away from the others and they could not catch her. She led oasily ait the way, winning by six lengths in 2:122-9, Bella second, only a nose before Nimrod third, Caramel fourth, a length and a half behind Bella, Euclid fifth, Lens sixta and Lizzle Mae last. Harriet was formerly called Jullet, and ran some fast races at Brighton Beach. If every one had known this, she would not have been lowest in the betting. Mutual pools $103 35 for $5.

Fourth Race—All ages, handleap sweepatakes, $30 each, $750 added, $150 to second; 15 miles. LAWN TENNIS EXPERTS AT HOBOKEN. ONORS EASY BETWEEN PHILADELPHIA AND LONG-

WOOD-THE CHAMPION IN SPLENDID FORM. Probably the largest and most critical of speciators, interested in lawn tennis, ever seen in the vicinity of New-York, assembled yesterday at the St. George's Grounds, Hoboken, to witness the return match between America Club was represented by I. S. and C. M. Clark, and the Longwood Club by Dr. Dwight and R. | D. Sears. The general interest was much increased by the result of the games at Longwood last week, when L S. Clark easily defeated R. D. Sears in two when I. S. Clark easily doleaned in the straight sets. Mr. Sears on that occasion was suffering from indisposition it was said, and the match was not a fair criterion of his play. Nearly all the known players from clubs in the neighborhood were present, as well as from Philadelphia and Boston. The audience was consequently both appreciative and critical, every point was noted and fine play greeted with loud ap-

When L S. Clark first faced Mr. Sears he won four successive games, his opponent scoring very few aces. Mr. Searr won the fifth game, but Mr. Clark won the set by 6.1. But the champion's play sudlenly changed and he wen the second set by 6.4. The pponents then changed courts and Mr. Sears won the hird set and the match easily by 6.2. Throughout the last two sets Mr. Scars seemed in fine form. No stroke, however difficult, appeared to baffle him. He advanced beldly in front of the service line and volleyed nearly every return with perfect case, at the same time keeping his antagonist at the extreme end of the court by hard drives, which fell but a few inches within the base line. Mr. Clark met these tactics by skilfully lifting the ball over his antagonist's head. On one occasion Sears, running after the ball away from the net, caught and returned it by a back stroke, playing it under the elbow. In another instance he recovered by playing up over his shoulder backwards. The opinion all those who witnessed the match was that the champion was never in fiver form. The match between Dr. Dwight and C. M. Ciark showed very even play up to the last set. Both players scored game and game until three all was called. Dr. Dwight then braced up and won three more and the set by d.3. The next set went to Mr. Clark by 6.3, leaving both players exactly even in games and sets. But the third set and the match Dr. Dwight wen easily by 6.1.

third set and the match Dr. Dwight wen easily by 6.1. Thus Longwood defeated Philadelphia in both singles. The double match went all the other way. The two Clarks play together in masterly style, never running together except to cover the play. Their antagonists played hadly together, often leaving half the court unprotected, sometimes striking at the same ball. The first two sets the Clarks won easily by 6.3, 6.2.

In the third Scars and his partner put out all their strength. The games were called live all and deuce games. The eleventh game fell to Longwood after a pretty rally of fourteen returns and some exquisite backlanded returns by Mr. Sears. In the twelfth search pretty rally of fourteen returns and some exquisite backhanded returns by Mr. Sears. In the twelfth game the Clarks played splendfdly and Philadelphia won making dence games again. Longwood withe thirteenth and Philadelphia the four teenth game. The fifteenth game went to Longwood and the sixteenth to Philadelphia, and after a splendid rally of 25 returns, the set and match The number of games taken to decide the set was 18, o while 8 were won by Longwood, and 10 by Philadelphia. The Clarks sail for Europe to-day to play the Ren-

The course was from off the club house, at the foot of East One-hundred-and-ninth-st., up the Sound to Gangway Buoy and return. A priz ewas awarded in each of the six classes, and a champion penuant given to the acht making the quickest time over the course. The yachts were all small, the largest being the Bella Beam, yacats were all small, the largest being the Beila Beam, 32 feet 6 inches over all; but some of them were re-markably fast sailers and were well handled. At 11:45 a gun from the club house gave the signal for starting and the yachts went over the line, careening under the trong southeast wind. The cat-boat Jessie got off firs and kept the lead to the close of the race, winning the ennant. Before reaching Fort Schuyler several of the racers were obliged to reef. The Ada and Biack Joke oke down before reaching the buoy and drew out of the race. The Eclipse carried away her topmast, bu completed the course. On the return down the Sound the wind died out considerably and the yachts shook out their reefs. A barge and two tugs filled with people ac companied the racers over the course. THE COURTS.

MR. AND MRS. DE MELP'S RELATIONS. TROUBLE THAT A MOTHER-IN-LAW CAUSED-

CHARGES AND COUNTER-CHARGES. Henry A. de Meli and Florence M. Draper were married at Dresden, Saxony, in 1869. Mr. de Mell is an American by birth, but of German descent, his father having been a German who many years ago lived at Leipsic. The original name of the de Meli family was Melly, which was changed by an order of the Court of Common Pieas in 1867. Mr. de Meli went to Dresden about the time when Miss Draper went there. Soon after Miss Draper became Mrs. de Meli, she and her husband come back to the United States. Mr. de Meil was a mining engineer and took his wife to Georgetown, Col. Georgetown did not seem to please Mr. a de Meli as a permanent place of residence, and they soon left it and went back to Europe.

About a year and a half ago Mrs. de Mell began an ection in the Supreme Court against her husband to obtain a limited divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatement. She alleged in her complaint that her place of residence is New-York City and that it always has been since and prior to her marriage. Mr. de Meli, she says, after their return to Dresden from Georgetown, Col., began a course of cruel treatment toward her. He also acted in a mean and unworthy manner toward her parents. He practically made it impossible for her to associate longer with her parents. He even refused to allow Mr. and Mrs. Draper to see her when she was sick. Moreover, Mr. de Mell acquired fast and intenperate habits and when he was under the influence of liquor he made threats against the safety of her person. His evil habits and ways grew apace and at last he be-His evil habits and ways grew apace and at last be became positively brutal. He beat and kicked his young boy to such an extent that she feared for the life of her child. Mrs. de Meli also avers in her complaint that at no time during her married life did she find favor in theeyes of Mr. de Meli's mother. Owing to her mother-in-law's insufferable conduct, frequent quarrels broke out between them in which the elder woman always showed the measureless superiority of her quarrelling powers, both as to vehemence of language and power of holding out. Mr. de Meli in these quarrels always took the side of his mother and insisted that his wife should go to his mother, humbly apologize and admit that she had been in the wrong. One day in October, 1881, the mother-inlaw met Mrs. de Meli in the street, and at once began to bembard her with a loud and long volume of abuse. She told Mrs. de Meli in the street, and at once began to bembard her with a loud and long volume of abuse. She told Mrs. de Meli that she was a pauper, who was dependent on her for the very bread she ate. Mrs. de Meli retreated before the ettack of her mother in-law, who followed close upon Ler. When they reached the house the mother-in-law told her that she (the pialnitif) was crazy. She related this experience to her husband but the only consolation she got was the declaration that he believed his mother was right in saying that she was crazy. That same evening a physician called on her who had been summoned by her husband. From this time on she began to grow alarmed at her husband, that his wife was in an insane asylum and that probably Mrs. de Meli would also have to be sent to one. He, moreover, started ramnors about town that his wife was not right in her; mind, and then took her eliddren away from her, giving out that they would not be properly ware for in her custody. Fearing that she would be thrown into an asylum, she field from Dresden to New-York. In order to have the custody. Fearing that she would be thrown into an away in a sale about her came positively brutal. He beat and kicked his young boy to such an extent that she feared for the life of her

The case came for trial yesterday before Justice Dono-hue. It was decided that the question of the residence of the contending parties should be first tried so as to determine the question which had been raised in regard to the jurisdiction of the Court. Mrs. de Meit testified that her husband had always represented that he was a citizen of the United States and a resident of this city. The trial will be continued to-day. John E. Parsons ap-peared for Mrs. de Meit.

MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY STOCK. The suit brought by Peter Marié and others at Commodore Garrison to recover $4,000,000 of Missouri Pacific Ratiroad stock obtained by the latter in 1876, was continued yesterday before Professor Theotore Dwight, referee, at No. 160 Broadway. The examnation of James Baker, former attorney for the Atlantic and Pacific and the Missouri Pacific, was brought to a close. He said that at the time of the purchase of the third mortgage bonds by Commodore Garrison the latter knew that the bonds were hypothecated to certain banks and individuals, but did not know to what particular banks or individuals. Cross-examined he said that $500,000 was issued in bonds to pay a debt and to construct the Carondelet branch. A large amount of the liabilities of the Missouri Pacific-$600,000-arose after it was leased to the Atlantic and Pacific, for which the latter became bound. Part of this debt was repreented by notes, none of which were secured by bonds, out many bonds were held in hypothecation as collateral to notes and bills. He could not say that Mr. Garrison had bought any of these notes. A judgment Garrison had bought any of these notes. A judgment on some of them was assigned to Kennedy, a clerk in Mr. Garrison's office, and was recovered on third mortmortgage bonds. This was about a year after the foreclosure decree. Commodore Garrison also became possessed of a stockyard in Kansas worth $200,000 or $300,000, owned by the company, by means of a judgment in favor of his cierk. The bill of foreclosure was filed because of the large amounts of taxes and judgments on the road coming due then and the fear that the rolling stock of the Missouri Pacific would be selzed to satisfy these debts. The idea was to put the matter into the hands of the Court as a protective measure and the witness, as counsel, had advised this step. He did not believe that there was any good or equitable ground on which a defence could have been made against the foreclosure.

THE STOKES WILL CONTEST.

Another hearing was had yesterday in the Stokes will contest. Nathan E. Ely, who said he had known Mr. Stokes for many years, testified that in April, 1881, Mr. Stokes had personally audited the accounts of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for the preceding year. The auditing was done at the house of Mr. Stokes, and occupied about two hours; that durng this time Mr. Stokes examined the checks and vouch ers submitted, and compared them one by one with the ount books. He displayed his customary busines carefulness and intelligence, and the witness never had carefulness and injudgence, and the witness never had a suspicion that his mind was not as vigorous as ever. Dr. George W. Richards, of Orange, testified in regard to the serious lilness of Mrs. Dule. Miss Jane Whitford, a servant in the Stokes family, detailed the routine of Mr. Stokes's family life; presiding and carving at his table, taking his daily exercise, giving directions to the servants, carving for Mrs. Stokes in her last sickness, and conducting family worship. The witness sickness, and conducting family worship. The witness recollected some special petitions on the occasion of the death of Mrs. Stokes. Mr. Stokes in his prayers was apt to refer to Mrs. Dale as "the sick and afflicted member of our family." The witness said that only a few days before Mr. Stokes's death, he called her to him and paid her her wages by a check, asking her if the amount wa correct. Mr. Stokes was a constant reader of the daily papers up to the time of his death. REFUSING TO DISSOLVE AN INJUNCTION.

Justice Lawrence yesterday refused to dissolve the temporary injunction which had been granted restraining the Mannatian Railway Company from doing any acts to carry out the so-called merger agreement. The company applied to have the injunction dissolved upon giving a bond of indemnity under the recent statute, which authorizes such a course in cases where the injury complained of and enjoined is not of an irreparable nature. Justice Lawrence, in his opinion, alindes to the fact that the injunction cannot be dissolved unless the injury is of a reparable nature, and declares that there are no data before him from which he can judge whether the injury in the present case is such or not. The affidavit upon which the application had been made merely stated as an expression of opinion that the merger agreement, if earried out, could not injure the Metropolitan Company, and if it did injure the company, that the injury could be readily compensated in damages. No facts were presented to the Court upon which it could form its own opinion. Aside from this the motion should be denied because the statute contemplated that the application should be made to the same Judge who granted the injunction. In this case the injunction had been granted by Chief-Justice Davis, and it had been continued after agreement by Justice Barrett. In the suit pending in the Court of Common Pieas the hearing on the injunction was still in progress, so the Chief Chief. are to be divided this three classes. The length of the course for the large yachts will be about thirty miles, that for the smaller rachts about twenty miles. All entries must be made before July 20.
